Heat Causing a Shortage of Power

By W. JOYNES MACFARLAN
WASHINGTON (AP)
Chairman Lee C. White of the Federal Power Commission said today the searing heat wave is causing a critical electric power situation in most of the nation east of the Rockies.

But he said he does not foresee any massive power failure such as the one that blacked out the Northeast last November.
In an interview, White also said the power outage that darkened two-thirds of Nebraska Monday "was a clear indication of the need for better and stronger interconnection" between systems.

He said if the Nebraska system had had stronger interties to the West "perhaps the difficulty could have been overridden without any outages."

"The future of the power industry rests in efficient and effective interconnection and coordination," White declared.
There were these other heat wave-related developments:

The commission sent telegrams to 500 major utilities urging them to marshal their full power resources to minimize the possibility of power failures.
A U.S. Weather Bureau climatologist, Dr. J. Murray Mitchell placed part of the blame for the heat wave on the jet strw the heat wave on the jet stream, saying "It's not undulating, or snaking around, as much as it ought to."

The jet stream flows from west to east across the continent at about 40,000 feet. Usually it curves up over Canada and then drifts south, dragging cooler air into central and eastern parts of the nation. But now it's just blowing more or less straight out into the Atlantic.

The Geological Survey reported drought conditions in the Northeast have worsened in recent weeks with high temperatures placing additional demands on reservoir and underground water supplies.

Did Something Out of Ordinary

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—
A 19-year-old youth who said
"unless I did something out of the ordinary I would remain a nobody all my life" was ordered today to stand trial for the shooting of Labor Party Leader
Arthur A. Calwell.
Detective Brian Ballard told the court the youth, Peter Raymond Kogan, told him: "I did not agree with Mr. Calwell's politics, and that made it easy to shoot him."
Calwell was shot at while sitting in his car several weeks ago after addressing an election rally on the outskirts of Sydney.
It was believed at the time that Calwell, who received superficial injuries on the face, had been out by flying glass. He testified today that a doctor had removed a bullet fragment from his chin.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

Women Read Too Much, Men Not Enough
Dear Helen: I read all the articles about how men should treat their wives, but my husband says that's hogwash. He won't bother with marriage manuals, then he blames me for being cold.
I try not to be cold, but I usually end up crying. Our life is unsatisfactory, and he thinks it is my fault.
He won't see a doctor, says he doesn't need one. I keep reading and wishing. But I have to admit, I wish mostly that he'd leave me alone. Is there any hope? — Mrs. T. W.
Dear Mrs. T. W.: If only men would read a little more and women wouldn't read quite so much, we'd see a lot more happy marriages.
Your husband needs basic instruction, and you need some everyday psychiatry from a counselor, which, hopefully, you can pass on to that inconsiderate man of yours.
A good inexpensive book to read together (and insist on it!) is one which can only be ordered through your family physician: "A Doctor's Marital Guide for Patients" by Bernard R. Breenblat, Budlong Press, 5428 North Virginia Avenue, Chicago, Ill.
A frank talk with your doctor will also help — H.
Dear Helen: For a year and a half I've kept Wednesday and Saturday nights open for Jack. Sometimes we go out, often we cook dinner in my apartment. I wash his clothes and iron them. On Sunday we clean my place first, and then go over and clean his.
He's so sure of me he never calls to ask for a date, just shows up. Or at least he always has.

I figured it worked both ways and I've been pretty sure of him too. Other night I was talking about our two stereo hi-fi's, and I said, "When we get married, which shall we keep?" before I thought. . . Dead silence. I haven't seen or heard from him since and our Saturday and Sunday came and went without him. He didn't even bring over his laundry.

He's a 35-year-old bachelor. I'm 28, old enough to know when I'm ditched. But can you tell me one thing: if a man can take you completely for granted, why can't you return the favor? — Jilted

Dear Jilted: . . . Because with him, "for granted" didn't mean forever.

One reason a bachelor stays that way is — the minute a girl indicates she has him in the bag he gives her the sack.

This man had a good thing going — for him, but it wasn't going anywhere — for you. Next time don't become a housemaid before you become a housewife. — H.

Dear Helen: I am going to give a "rice bag" party. Is it proper for the hostess to have the ribbon and material cut and ready when guests arrive? Who should be invited when the party precedes a formal wedding? — Patte

Dear Patte: A wedding consultant in our town tells me "rice bag" parties may include several expense-saving gestures — services that are quite costly otherwise.

In addition to filling individual rice bags, a kitchen contingent can prepare the bridal almonds and wrap those hundreds of wedding cake favors. Others may place cards if there is to be a sit-down dinner after the ceremony.

You can have the ribbon and material cut and ready, or let the guest work from scratch.

Who to invite: The honoree, her attendants, very close relatives and friends. This can be a final bridal shower, if you aren't a close relative. Gift-parties aren't generally given by members of the family. — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help YOU. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences. Address Helen Bottel in care of Hope Star.

Hope Star Sports

This Was One of the Better Star Games

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
ST. LOUIS (AP) — "You read what an edge the National League has," said Detroit pitcher Denny McLain, "How their pitching is better, how their hitting is better. It's as if we're supposed to go out there and come the game."

The American League didn't concede. But they didn't win either.

The National League did that, 2-1 in 10 innings.

Only in Tuesday's 37th All-Star Game it wasn't better pitching and it wasn't better hitting. The job was accomplished with a pair of 10th inning singles by Tim Lincecum of St. Louis and Maury Wills of Los Angeles, and extended National League domination of the midsummer classic through 10 games.

The American League has won only once during that period — there also was a tie — and the National now has reeled off four straight victories while pushing its overall lead in the series to 19-17-1.

There's little doubt that the American League wanted this one. Manager Sam Mele even admitted that the AL stars were getting embarrassed, and Baltimore third baseman Brooks Robinson would have handed back his awards and records for a victory.

Robinson, who played the full 10 innings and collected three hits, the Most Valuable Player award and two fielding records, said as much after the game.

"It's nice to get the MVP thing and nice to get the records, but it's nice to win," Robinson said. "A hit in the right place the last couple of years and we win one. But they win... well... it takes a little glitter off everything."

It may have taken some of the glitter off, but there was no shoving the American League around. As a matter of fact, the American League came away with all the awards, better pitching performances and the same number of hits. But they couldn't find a way to win.

"Score a few more runs," said Baltimore's Frank Robinson, who used to be on the National League side. "That's the only answer."

The answer, however, came from the National League after a 10-inning struggle in oppressive 102-degree heat that turned new Busch Memorial Stadium into a furnace. It was so hot that about 100 of the 49,936 spectators were treated for heat exhaustion and several deaths in the St. Louis area were attributed to the heat.

The heat was on the National League at first, despite the fact that the Dodgers' great left-hander, Sandy Koufax, was making his first All-Star start.

In the second inning, Brooks Robinson slammed a liner to left field, Hank Aaron of Atlanta, started back, apparently lost the ball in the sun, then raced in, but was unable to make a shoestring catch. When he retrieved the ball Robinson was standing at third with a triple.

Boston's George Scott fouled out but Koufax then uncorked a wild pitch over the head of Atlanta catcher Joe Torre and Robinson raced home for a 1-0 lead. McLain protected that with three perfect innings, taking only 28 pitches to retire nine batters.

Willie Mays of San Francisco then started things for the National League against Jim Kaat of Minnesota, rifling a single to left in the fourth inning for his 22nd All-Star hit and extending his own record.

A single by Robert Clemente and a grounder got Mays to third and he raced home on a dribbler down the third base line by Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs that went for a single. The run also extended another one of Mays' records, giving him 19 in All-Star competition.

It stayed 1-1 through a profusion of pitchers — Mel Stottlemyre of New York and Sandy Siebert of Cleveland for the American and Jim Bunning of Philadelphia and Juan Marichal of San Francisco for the National — until the 10th when Gaylord Perry of the Giants ran into trouble.

Brooks Robinson led off with

McCarver, Wills Spark National Win

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer
ST. LOUIS (AP) — To little Maury Wills, anxious to prove he should have been the National League's starting shortstop in the All-Star game, "It seemed that I was on the bench a week waiting to get into the game."

Wills got his chance Tuesday in the 10th inning, his only time at bat. He came through with a single, scoring Tim McCarver of St. Louis and winning it 2-1 for the Nationals. He also made a dazzling catch in the ninth inning.

Baseball's base-stealing king and sparkplug of the Los Angeles Dodgers still wore a determined look as he walked from the playing field into the cool clubhouse. He was not smiling as he sat down in front of the wrong locker.

"Satisfying," said Wills softly. "Yes, that's what it was, my most satisfying All-Star game."

One newsmen, remembering Wills was miffed over being voted behind Cincinnati's Leo Cardenas, reminded him he wouldn't have had the chance as a starter to drive in the winning run.

"Yeah, but I might have scored a run earlier," he retorted.

A photographer asked Wills for a big smile and he replied: "I'll smile for you in October."

The Dodgers are third in the National League, five games back of the leading San Francisco Giants.

McCarver, who had singled and reached second on a sacrifice, didn't expect to get into the game.

"Just being here rates with the Series," said McCarver, hero of the Cardinals' 1964 World Series victory.

"Tim got a real good jump off second," said Harry Walker, third base coach. "Tim is fast and it certainly was worth the gamble."

The winning manager, Walt Alston of Los Angeles, praised his pitchers and the defensive play of Willie McCovey of San Francisco at first base.

In the American League clubhouse, starting pitcher Denny McLain of Detroit was listening to the 10th inning.

"Boy I'd like to beat these guys so bad I can taste it," he said.

Brooks Robinson, the Baltimore third baseman, brushed aside compliments for being voted Most Valuable Player. He put it this way:

"It's nice, but when they win it takes a little glitter off everything."

He was 3-for-4, scored the only AL run and made three outstanding field plays.

Losing Manager Sam Mele thought his club played a great game, but couldn't come up with a way to beat the Nationals.

"Score a few more runs," said Frank Robinson, formerly of Cincinnati. "I certainly haven't missed the National League pitching."

Travis Almost Fail to Halt a Big Rally

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Arkansas saw a nine-run advantage slip to only one before the Travelers rallied for four runs in the ninth inning to stop Amarillo 13-8.

The Travelers blasted three home runs for 20 hits as Arkansas snapped a five-game losing streak and moved to within 1½ games of the Texas League lead, held by Amarillo.

In other Texas League games Austin pounded El Paso 10-1 and Dallas-Fort Worth beat Albuquerque 8-3.

The Travelers took a 9-0 lead after four innings, but Amarillo narrowed the margin to 9-8 on Ed Moxey's three-run homer and a two-run circuit blast by Ron Davis.

Larry Stubing had four hits for Arkansas.

Hal Breeden and Billy Southworth collected three hits each in pacing Austin's 14-hit attack against El Paso.

At Arlington, Charlie Benson's two-run triple touched off a 4-run outburst by Dallas-Fort Worth in the fourth inning. It was all Ron Law needed en route to his seventh triumph. The loss snapped Albuquerque's five-game winning streak.

Boycott Could Mean Severe Red Setback

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
The Communist bloc has dropped the other shoe with Poland joining Russia's boycott of scheduled track and field meets in the United States this month.

Now amateur sports officials are waiting to see whether the International Amateur Athletic Federation drops either shoe on the Communists.

The IAAF, headquartered in London, presides over track and field throughout the world and could administer a severe wrist slapping to Poland and Russia for failing to keep their commitments, a tactic the IAAF usually frowns upon. So far, it has remained silent.

Polish athletes were ready to leave for their scheduled meet at Berkeley, Calif., this weekend when word of the cancellation came Tuesday. The Russians had called off their July 23-24 meet in Los Angeles on Monday. American involvement in the war in Viet Nam was given as the reason for both pull-outs.

In Chicago, Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, said he deplored political influence in sports.

"Representatives of all countries have joined in denunciation of political influence," Brundage said. "In this case, the first reaction will come from the IAAF to determine if there is a violation of rules or principles."

Col. Don Hull, executive director of the Amateur Athletic Union, who is in Europe, said he would fly to Moscow to try and bind the split.

Griffith in Knockout of Archer

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Middleweight champion Emile Griffith will come out with fists flying in an effort to score a quick knockout over Joey Archer tonight in their title fight if he follows the plans of his handlers.

Griffith was rated just an even money shot in the betting, however, against the New York challenger for their television 15-rounder at Madison Square Garden. Starting time is 10 p.m., EDT.

"I told Emile we don't want to take any chances on a close decision because the Irish will be out in full force to root for Archer," said trainer and co-manager Gil Clancy, an Irishman himself.

"I haven't been knocked out by anyone and I don't expect Griffith will do it either," said Archer. "I have weight, speed and desire going for me and I'm going to win. I've waited three years for this shot and I'm not going to miff it now."

Archer, at 160 pounds, probably will have from eight to 10 pounds on Griffith. The champion, who is involved in a court battle to retain his welterweight crown, weighed only 150½ when he dethroned 36-year-old Dick Tiger at the Garden April 25.

LSU Player Lasts a Day with Raiders

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — Rookie back Joe LaBruzzi took offense at playing defense and cut out for Cutt Off.

LaBruzzi, who starred at Louisiana State, left for his home at Cutt Off, La., after the first day of training at the Oakland Raiders' camp, blaming inexperience at playing defense for his decision.

"I was a running back in college," he said Tuesday.

Coach John Rauch, who was trying LaBruzzi, the American Football League club's 11th draft choice at safety, said: "I really didn't see enough of LaBruzzi to know if he could have helped us. But I hated to see him leave."

Arkansan Is Star of the All-Star Game

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer
ST. LOUIS (AP) — Brooks Robinson, who didn't come in from the heat until the game was over, went back out today for another grueling test.

Robinson, who survived 10 innings of an All-Star game played in 102-degree temperature, was faced with pushing himself through a whirlwind day of traveling.

Before the day ended, the Most Valuable Player of Tuesday's game would be on one airplane and two buses and in and through four cities.

Brooks, half of the Baltimore Orioles' slugging Robinson boys, was voted the MVP award unanimously despite the National League's 2-1 victory over the American League.

The 29-year-old third baseman had a difficult enough time reaching the game because of the nationwide airlines strike. His travels afterward were even worse.

"On Monday we took a bus from Baltimore to New York and then flew into St. Louis," Robinson explained after lashing three hits and making several brilliant plays at third base while playing the entire game.

"Tomorrow morning I'm going to fly back to Baltimore. Then we'll take a bus to Philadelphia. We have an exhibition game there tomorrow night. After the game we'll take a bus to Newark and stay overnight. Then we'll take a plane out of there to Detroit."

Some other people traveled, too. Robinson's parents, a couple of fellows he played with in high school and his coach from American Legion baseball drove up from Little Rock for the game.

They and the rest of the 49,936 fans saw Robinson line a triple past Hank Aaron in left field and score the AL's run in the second inning, single in the seventh and single again in the 10th.

They also saw him set an All-Star record by handling eight chances flawlessly and tie another by making four putouts.

En route to the records he snared Ron Santo's torrid liner in the second inning, grabbed Aaron's wicked grounder and threw him out in the sixth and did the same with a Santo grounder in the ninth.

"It's nice getting the MVP thing, and it's nice getting the records," Robinson said, "but it's nicer to win. A hit in the right place the last couple of years and we win one. But they win. Well... it takes a little glitter off everything."

Commissioner Rozelle 'Walking on Eggs'

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
Sports Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
NEW YORK (NEA) — In his own words, Alvin (Pete) Rozelle of the National Football League is a commissioner "walking on eggs."

Peace, it may be wonderful for the owners of the pro teams in terms of immediate stabilization of their financial pictures, but for Rozelle it's an interim period of wariness.

Over one shoulder he has the Justice Department and over the other shoulder he has Congress, and Pete's playing it with all the coyness of an Iron Curtain plenipotentiary before he steps in and takes full command of the two professional football leagues (NFL and American) which come under his domain since the startling merger of June 8.

Sports in the second half of the 20th century are no longer a matter of winning or losing and sowing the seeds of future victory on the field of friendly strife. What's big now, baby, is merchandising and licensing, telecasting and ancillary rights, sponsor cost-per-minute and lobbyists.

This adds up to interstate commerce, with possible restraint of trade and all the other trappings of big business. So now the Justice Department and Congress can get into the game.

The pro football leagues aren't too worried about the Justice Department's tampering with their merger, even though it means a common draft and monopoly (theoretically) and a college kid who just got his degree in football can't hold up the pros for half a million in loot. The feeling is that pro football has so grabbed the public's imagination that the Justice boys wouldn't want to mess around with the structure. At least, that's the way pro football's playing it now.

They'd be even more confident of their stature, however, if the Hart bill—popularly known as the Sports bill—could get through Congress during the current session. It's already halfway there, having passed the Senate. But it's held up right now in Rep. Emanuel Celler's (D-N.Y.) Judiciary sub-committee.

Hearings aren't even scheduled for at least a month, according to Kenneth Harkins, chief counsel of the antitrust division of Subcommittee No. 5 (which means he's Rep. Celler's chief aide). And there are no plans to get hopping on the Sports bill until the pending civil rights bill is disposed of.

Rozelle has sources which indicate to him, however, it won't take that long. (For one thing, the football pros are so organized in Washington they've got their own lawyers and lobbyists.)

The Sports bill, and its fate, will determine how fast Rozelle can act in his organization of postmerger pro football. Its advantages are obvious, since it will put football in the same specialized position as baseball; the bill would enable a sports league to operate in its unique way without the restraints put on normal business. In other words, they wouldn't have to worry about the legality of option contracts, common drafts, equal split of television money, etc.

Meanwhile, Rozelle, whose own contract as NFL commissioner hasn't been renewed yet, is reluctant to step in as a czar because it might raise the hackles of Celler, who's friendly to football but has had a hate-on for baseball ever since the Brooklyn Dodgers were moved out of his native borough.

So the immediate problems confronting pro football are

AMERICA AFLOAT

By WM. TAYLOR McKEOWN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
SAN CARLOS, Calif. — (NEA) — Try to find America's average boatman and he may be offshore right now, sailing on San Francisco Bay.

His name is Hugh Hutchings.

Recently Hutchings was selected to represent 67,000 other sailors as chief commander of the United States Power Squadrons.

They are the largest group of pleasure boatmen around. In spite of the name, flags and uniforms, they have no government connection. Main aim of the squadrons is to educate beginning boatmen in the safe handling of pleasure craft.

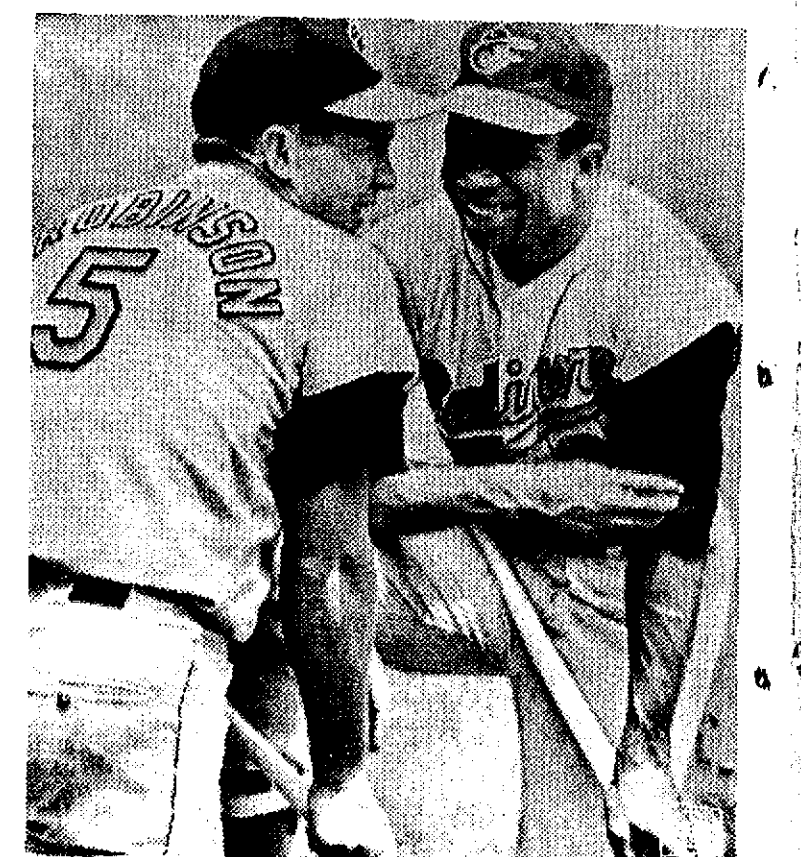

"And they're the hardest ones to reach," says Hutchings, speaking from 30 years of experience. He first set out from shore as a boy in lake scows on the ponds of southern Wisconsin. Later, during years as a chemical engineer in Chicago, he took on the more formidable waters of Lake Michigan under sail.

"Many beginners don't feel they need to learn about the sport," he said. "It's the experienced boatman who seems to know what he doesn't know."

Hutchings will probably spend a lot of time ashore this year. Traveling around the country, discussing how to track down and teach beginners, is one of the major duties that goes with his new title as USPS chief.

"It really isn't too odd for a sailboat man to be in a powerboat group," he said. "Our membership is spread right across the sport, from owners of huge power and sail yachts down to those who don't even own a boat and never have, but want to learn what they're doing before they make a purchase. We're proud of them. And today, the

Another Chance For Private Barboza

By ROBERT COCHNAR, Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—The clerk glanced at the brief and yelled across the courtroom, "Hey, what's this guy's name? Barboza?"

His name is Barboza. Pfc. Gene Alan Barboza and he, the subject of the brief, was beginning the sixth month of a 20-year sentence for murder.

A military court-martial pronounced sentence last December after it found Barboza guilty of shooting and killing a Dominican youth who, on October 16, 1965, prowled about the hospital Barboza guarded in Santo Domingo.

Last week, Barboza's defense general counsel appeared before an Army Board of Review to point out, among other things, that the 19-year-old paratrooper was denied his right of counsel during his preliminary interrogation when he signed a confession.

For Capt. Richard Capriolo, prosecutor for the government, it was another hearing. He had a position to put before the Board and that is what he did. The next day, he'd argue another position in another hearing.

For Lt. Col. Jacob Hagopian, the defense counsel, it was his last hearing. The next day he'd become a member of the Board and hear cases perhaps similar to Barboza's.

And for Gene Barboza, it was a chance for freedom. He, of course, was in the Army's Disciplinary Barracks at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., where the next day is not especially different from the next. And the next.

The courtroom was empty but for two Army captains in civilian clothes, the three members of the Board of Review, the clerk, Hagopian, Capriolo and Edward P. Gallogly, Barboza's civilian attorney, who presented the defense at the December court-martial.

Neither the defense nor the government contested the fact that Private Barboza did, indeed, kill the Dominican. Capriolo argued, however, that Barboza did it because "he was mad. He wanted to vindicate his personal ego because he was verbally abused and spat upon."

Hagopian said the young sentry "was performing his duty as a guard" and that he was "justified in doing what he had to do to protect his post."

But the defense's major argument had to do with the apparent denial of Barboza's right to counsel. Hagopian said that during the preliminary interrogation by Sgt. John Smith of the Army's Criminal Investigation Division (CID), in Santo Domingo the day after the killing, Barboza asked to see his commanding officer, Dr. Philip Goddard. The request was refused.

Hagopian read Smith's court-martial testimony to the Board:

DEFENSE COUNSEL: (Barboza) asked to see Dr. Goddard, did he not?

SMITH: Yes, sir, he certainly did.

DEFENSE: There wasn't any question in your mind that he wanted to see Dr. Goddard, was there?

SMITH: No, sir.

DEFENSE: Before he signed the statement?

SMITH: No, sir.

DEFENSE: And that you didn't afford him the opportunity?

SMITH: No, sir.

"This refusal by Smith to honor Barboza's request to consult with his commanding officer," Colonel Hagopian told the Board, "constitutes a denial of his right to counsel." He cited the Supreme Court ruling, Escobedo vs. Illinois, as precedent in law.

(The 1964 Escobedo ruling held that persons suspected of criminal acts are automatically entitled to counsel during police interrogations.)

Moreover, Hagopian added, since counsel was not present when Barboza signed a confession prepared by Sergeant Smith, that confession was invalid "and should not have been admitted as evidence in the court-martial."

Without that evidence, the Army would not have had a case, the counsel maintained, since there were no witnesses to the shooting. "Where is the government's evidence—Independent of the accused's statement—that indicated the probability that the killing was unlawful?"

Why, Hagopian asked, didn't Smith get Goddard for Barboza? "Goddard was available," he said. "The defense sug-

Other priority items didn't even get off the ground. A proposed constitutional amendment to fix a four-year term for House members is probably dead for the session. So, too, is proposed repeal of the Taft-Hartley law section which permits states to ban the union shop.

Again and again congressional leaders have pushed back the target date for adjournment. The question now is not so much when Congress will get out of town but how much Johnson legislation will expire with the end of the session.

Jet Age Arouses Sleeping Nation

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

LIMA, Peru—(NEA)—Peru's traditional midday siesta may soon become another relic of the country's rich but economically depressed past, mainly because Peruvians are finding little time for such luxuries these days.

After four sleepy centuries, Peru—if not wide awake—is stretching and President Fernando Belaunde Terry seems not about to let it doze again.

Belaunde, a soft-spoken architect-turned-politician who was elected president in 1963 after a military junta had disposed of the last government, is one of a growing number of activists who are attempting to pull their country out of the poverty in which it has long languished.

It's no easy job, Belaunde freely admits, but he also says some progress has been made in his country of 12 million people.

Tourism has aided the economy considerably and is bound to be an important factor for future growth. "During the age of the propeller plane," Belaunde says, "Peru was just too far away."

"Now, jets have brought us closer to the world. We can now compete."

The occasion for his remarks was a session with reporters who had participated in Braniff International's inaugural nonstop service from New York to Lima. The flight, which once took as long as 20 hours, now takes seven.

Belaunde is proud of the fact that Peru, in just 10 years' time, is the world's No. 1 fishing nation. He is therefore concerned about France's scheduled nuclear tests in the South Pacific.

"France is a very responsible country," he says. "But we are worried anyway. Anything that could happen to the water would be disastrous. I think it is more important for France to keep the good will she has always had in Latin America than to explode a bomb."

Nevertheless, France plans to explode the bomb and Belaunde admits there is nothing much he can do about it.

Peruvians say that Sen. Robert F. Kennedy put his finger on a major problem in his recent Senate speech on Latin America when he declared that "isolation and insularity are the rule even within nations." Kennedy added:

"Peru is a seacoast nation, with an advancing export economy based on maritime products. It is also a mountain nation, a place of scattered inaccessible villages where peasants have never heard of the United States—where even the word 'Peru' has no gests that Smith deliberately refused to get Goddard because he knew Goddard would tell Barboza not to say, or sign, anything. Smith merely wanted to clean up the case."

The government's contention, according to Captain Capriolo, is that the reason Barboza wanted to talk to Goddard was to find out whether the Dominican was dead. "Smith told Barboza that the man was dead and then," said Capriolo, "Barboza told Smith he'd sign the statement. And he did."

In addition to the oral arguments, the government and the defense prepared lengthy, detailed briefs for the Board of Review. In about a fortnight, the Board will render a decision.

And the Board can do a number of things. It can reverse the court-martial decision and Gene Barboza would be a free man, a reinstated soldier and a paratrooper which, his mother says, "he has always wanted to be."

But the Board can also uphold the verdict, or reduce it, or find errors in fact or in law and order Gene Barboza to be retried. Meanwhile, Barboza remains a convicted murderer.

meaning.

"And it is a nation of Amazon jungle beyond the mountains, a jungle which is no closer to the thoughts of Lima than to the thoughts of Washington or Indianapolis."

Belaunde says his country must "recover the relationship of men to land. The Inca culture had this. We should be self-sufficient in food and, right now, we are spending $100 million a year for basic food."

The Alliance of Progress, while "a wonderful proposition," is not doing nearly enough to help, Peruvian officials believe.

Says Belaunde: "For the unity of the hemisphere, we must shorten the distance between the rich and poor. The job is too big for us. We need to attract foreign capital."

The Alianza has given Peru $158 million since Belaunde took office three years ago, most of it in the fields of tax and customs reform, agricultural credit and training. Very little, therefore, of immediate benefit to the great mass of Peruvians.

If agricultural difficulties were not enough, Peru also suffers from an urban population explosion. Lima, a city of 1.5 million people, gains at last 50,000 new residents a year.

The city is ringed with dusty, waterless slums which people, fleeing from the total poverty of the country, are constructing daily. Lima's mayor, confronted with all the problems which beset growing cities, and more, says blandly: "We are doing what we can," which, unfortunately, is very little.

Yet Peru's potential is great. New highways are opening the hitherto untapped jungles which are rich in lumber, rubber and sugar.

More and more U.S. companies are exploring the mountains where great reserves of copper, iron ore and other minerals are located. Oil, too, has been found.

Belaunde hopes that the new interest U.S. airlines have taken in Latin America will bring down tourists—and businessmen—to see what is taking place.

Answers Not All In On Cholesterol

BY WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—My doctor has me on a low cholesterol diet as outlined in a booklet published by a food manufacturer. The list of foods allowed includes all kinds of shellfish and all kinds of liver. A recent article from the American Heart Association included both kinds of food in the list to be avoided. Who is right?

A—To state the amount of cholesterol in various foods is easy but to state how important it is in the prevention of coronary heart disease is more difficult. Vegetable oils contain no cholesterol and animal fats do. The cholesterol content of liver is higher than that of round steak and lower than that of calves' brains appetizingly whipped up with scrambled eggs. The cholesterol content of oysters (325 milligrams in 100 grams) is higher than that of lobster (210) and shrimp (150) but cod, salmon, tuna, etc., contain only 50 to 60 milligrams in 100 grams.

and group on a similar diet supplemented with corn oil. A third group continued their usual diet. The second group had the highest rate of deaths and recurrences, despite its low cholesterol content.

Some doctors now believe that avoidance of a heart attack depends more on keeping your weight within the normal range and cutting your sugar intake than on the kind of fat you eat. Nobody knows for sure as yet but this latest theory may be right.

Q—How does a person go about getting a member of his family treated for emotional or mental illness? What does a person do if he can't afford a psychiatrist?

A—If you can't persuade the victim to seek psychiatric help voluntarily, there is little you can do unless the disease becomes so acute as to constitute a danger to himself or others, in which case legal commitment to a mental hospital would be necessary.

If the victim cannot afford treatment by a private psychiatrist, an effort should be made to get him to attend a free clinic operated by your state or county or nearest medical college. Your family doctor or county welfare agency can help you get on the right track.

Please send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Brandstadt cannot answer individual letters he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

Johnson Got Things Done, Everyone Said

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the months after Lyndon B. Johnson became president any government secretary or lawyer could—and did—tell you "he gets things done."

Who could argue? Congress, as if paying off a reverent debt to the assassinated John F. Kennedy, sprang to life and pushed along the White House program as it had not for Kennedy.

The pace quickened after the 1964 elections gave Johnson a massive majority in both the Senate and the House.

But around last Easter Congress dropped off to sleep. Perhaps coincidentally, perhaps not, it was about that time that the polls showed a drop in Johnson's popularity.

As Congress straggled back to town this week, well-rested after a 10-day Fourth of July "weekend," there was little evidence that the long sleep was over—although the Senate did pass a federal pay raise bill Monday.

The lack of action can be explained in part by the war in Viet Nam. Johnson's appropriations requests have taken time and, particularly in the Senate, so have the voicing of individual legislators' positions.

Only three measures listed as major bills in the official calendar have reached the President and become law since Congress convened six months ago. The major enactments (1) provided emergency financing for the war in Viet Nam, (2) revised the tax laws and stepped up withholding rates and (3) established a program of benefits for military personnel with post-Korea service.

Otherwise, major administration measures are far from the passage stage.

The House Rules Committee has cleared the $1.75-billion antipoverty bill for floor action, but when it gets there Republicans are certain to slow action by battling the administration approach every step of the way. The Senate has yet to act.

The House has approved bringing another 7.2 million workers under the federal minimum wage law and increasing the minimum to $1.60 an hour by 1969. Again, the Senate has not acted.

Neither the House nor the Senate has debated Johnson's urban development program. The Senate has passed a measure to establish minimum auto safety standards but this time the House has not acted.

And the President's civil rights bill is in deep trouble. A coalition of Democrats and liberal Republicans managed to work out a compromise version of the controversial open housing provision. But even if the measure passes the House it is almost certain to set off a filibuster in the Senate.

The Jacobys discuss the problem of responding with a bad hand.

Oswald: "Expert bidding does not always lead to the best contract. When you respond with a bad hand you risk ending up wishing you had passed. Furthermore, once you start with an unsound response you may find yourself trapped into making a second bid."

Jim: "If North merely rebids two clubs South will pass and his spade response will have paid off. Against the normal lead of the king of hearts, North will make two clubs."

Oswald: "You may wonder why South found a second spade bid after North's jump in clubs. The answer is that the jump to three clubs was forcing and South hoped that it might well be preliminary to a spade raise."

Jim: "North would have made the same three club bid with ace and two small spades and a singleton heart. In that case game in spades would be a cinch."

Oswald: "South knew he was in trouble when North went to three no-trump but South wasn't going any further. At least, no one had doubled."

Jim: "Excellent defense set North four tricks. East opened the king of hearts. North ducked a couple of heart leads. Then he played ace-king and a small diamond. East cashed his fourth heart and led his queen of spades. Dummy's king was covered by West's ace and North's jack dropped. Later East got in with a diamond and led another spade so the defense held poor North to his three aces and two kings."

Students Are Bothered by Education Lack

By GEOFFREY GOULD

WASHINGTON (AP) — The lack of "a really good education" is what's bothering college students today — not Viet Nam, sex or the bomb.

That is the central thesis of a recent report on a national conference on student stress, and the key word is "relevance."

"One criterion of a good education," the report said, "is relevance — relevance to the world of modern politics and social ferment, relevance to the human condition in mass society, relevance to the doubts, fears and hopes of thoughtful youth."

The report grew out of a conference held last fall in Warren, Va., by representatives of 33 colleges and universities, usually two students and one faculty member from each. The report was written by Dr. Edward J. Shoben Jr., director of the Center for Study and Training in Higher Education at the University of Cincinnati.

"We need relationships with teachers who will help us face the big tough hang-ups," one student wrote about the conference.

"Am I a moral pacifist or a coward? Is abortion a human answer to the problems of unwed motherhood, and what has the pill got to do with my answer? Who am I, where am I, where am I headed, and do I really want to go there? What are the things that make society really worth fighting for?"

Not too many clearcut answers emerged from this soul-searching, but Shoben's report did come up with these suggestions:

— Graduate schools should give more attention to the preparation of teachers — with broader range of experience, student evaluation of their performance, and counseling experience — to help him attune himself more sensitively to student problems."

Arkansas Named by Artist Group

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. C. Caldwell Harris of Hamburg, a well known Arkansas poet, has been elected to the International Platform Association, a group made up of writers, lecturers and agents.

Mrs. Harris will be recognized along with other new members at the association's annual convention July 19-23 in Washington.

• The "black power" philosophy of CORE's Floyd McKissick and some other civil rights leaders is opposed by NAACP chief Roy Wilkins in a deepening controversy within the movement. • Vice President Hubert Humphrey proposes U.S. visits by Southeast Asian leaders to bring home to Americans the views of their countries on the struggle against communism in Viet Nam. • The Teamsters Union convention again backed up President James Hoffa in his court battles with the government, underwriting a million dollars in legal fees.

Delayed Election Named Liberal

CHARLOTTETOWN, P.E.I. (AP) — Two delayed elections in Prince Edward Island Monday night made Liberal Party Leader Alex Campbell the youngest man ever elected premier of a Canadian Province. He is 32.

Campbell's party won two more seats in the provincial legislature Monday, giving him a 17-15 edge over Premier Walter R. Shaw's Progressive Conservative party.

Theodore Roosevelt was born Oct. 27, 1858.

THEY STILL COME—After a half-century of religious persecution in the Soviet Union, indications are there is a spiritual revival taking place in Russia and other Communist countries. Here, Soviet citizens worship at a Russian Orthodox Church near Moscow.

Revenue Declines But Supervisor's Salary Increases

I have in front of me a copy of the minutes of the County Board of Education meeting of June 21, the fourth paragraph of which reports that salary increases were authorized for County School Supervisor Elmer Brown and his secretary.

For the upcoming school year 1966-67 Mr. Brown's salary was increased from $5,800 to $6,500, and his secretary's from $2,500 to $2,800—a total increase in administrative expense of $1,000.

Personal friends of Mr. Brown will put this report down as evidence of personal enmity and prosecution of a public official by the newspaper. But this is not true. Your editor has the utmost respect for Mr. Brown, a competent school administrator of many years' standing. But he is a school man who doesn't teach—an administrator with a vanishing field to administer.

There used to be a reason for maintaining Mr. Brown's office, variously known as county school superintendent, county examiner, and now county school supervisor. Hempstead county used to have a population of 32,000 and 25 school districts. Now the population is less than 20,000, and the number of districts has shrunk to 7.

Either our concept of fewer and better school dists. through consolidation is wrong, or Mr. Brown's office should be abolished to conserve the tax money it wastes. We have kept this issue before the Hempstead county public for years, and will do so in every election campaign for the County Board of Education—where we have to have three of the five members in order to close out the office. Repeatedly the people have put two on the board for abolition, but never have been able to gain majority control. The reason for this failure is obvious: The Hope district is prohibited from voting in three of the zones set up by the law governing elections to the County Board of Education.

Far from being a personal issue between the newspaper and Mr. Brown the county school supervisor's office poses this practical problem to the taxpayer:

Here is a public office that gobbles up the common school fund but contributes nothing to the cause of education. In an era when consolidation of rural school districts is universal it's as obsolete as a buggy-whip socket on an automobile.

The revenue supporting the county school supervisor is declining at the very moment that the supervisor-dominated majority on the Board of Education chooses to increase administrative overhead by $1,000 a year.

One of the major financial props under the supervisor's office used to be the revenue from the sale of poll tax receipts, now virtually extinct. Poll tax receipts in Hempstead used to run around 7,000 a year—now they're down to about 700, and will vanish just as soon as the legislature gets around to abolishing the requirement that teachers and others drawing tax money must pay poll tax.

So Mr. Brown's maintenance now requires digging into other school funds that properly should be spent for salaries of actual teachers. For one thing, the state government has been compelled to increase its contribution to the office from $150.70 a month to $332.00, starting with the current fiscal year.

Is all this personal, or is it merely a newspaper's discharge of an obvious obligation to public education and the taxpayer?

Specialists May Be Sent Back to War

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
WASHINGTON (AP) — Some Army helicopter pilots and others with critical military specialties will find themselves sent back to Viet Nam faster than they expected, it was learned today.

A decision has been made to shorten the time between involuntary tours for certain badly needed specialists, the Army said.

The demand has rocketed for helicopter pilots and mechanics, in particular, while the supply has not been able to keep pace. The Army is making strong efforts to produce thousands of new chopper crewmen and maintenance personnel. This is expected to cure the situation in time.

Generally, the Army said it makes "every effort to give everyone, exclusive of volunteers, two years in another assignment before being eligible for subsequent tours in Viet Nam."

The normal Viet Nam tour for all services is one year. The first indications of the new action relating to men with critical skills came in closed-door testimony by Gen. Harold K. Johnson, Army chief of staff, before a Senate Armed Services subcommittee.

He was asked about the possibility of a need to request an extension of tours of duty in Viet Nam for specialists.

Johnson said there were two alternative courses. "For the critical specialists like the helicopter pilot, we could extend the tour in Viet Nam and maintain the two-year tour out of Viet Nam with his family, or we can curtail the time that he had with his family after he has served a tour there," he said.

"At the present time, our plan is to go to the curtailment of his time on an accompanied (with family) tour, and we expect that we are going to have to return some helicopter pilots to Viet Nam shortly after a year out of that country."

Asked about this, the Army said, "such a plan is in effect." It was indicated that no enlisted men or officers in the key specialist groups had yet been sent back to Viet Nam under these circumstances, but sources said it was only a matter of time before this would be done.

The other armed services said they are undertaking no shortening of intervals between involuntary tours of duty in Viet Nam.

Cotton Men Turning to Stoneville 7A

Hempstead County cotton producers planted most of their cotton acreage this year to the Stoneville 7A and Deltapine Smooth Leaf varieties. This was revealed in a recent survey by the Cotton Division's Classing Office of the C&MS, USDA, in Little Rock, Arkansas.

According to Mr. Eugene R. McInnes, Officer in Charge of the Cotton Classing Office, the survey indicated that approximately three-fourths of the county's cotton acreage was planted to the two varieties.

Last year Hempstead County produced 2,100 500-pound bales on 2,300 harvested acres with an average yield of 437 pounds per acre.

Espionage Is Charged to Military Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former military aide to the Joint Chiefs of Staff has been accused of conspiring to deliver defense information to the Soviet Union.

A federal grand jury indictment naming William Henry Whalen, a retired Army lieutenant colonel, said the information included data on atomic weapons, missiles and the retaliation plans of the Strategic Air Command.

It said Whalen received a total of $5,500 on six occasions between December 1959 and March 1961 from two former Soviet Embassy officials who have returned home.

There was no immediate explanation from the Justice Department nor the Pentagon on the gap of five years between the last alleged offense and the arrest.

Whalen, 51 and now unemployed, was taken into custody Tuesday by FBI agents in suburban Alexandria, Va., where he lives. He was arraigned on the espionage conspiracy charge, which carries a maximum penalty of death, and released several hours later after posting $15,000 bond.

The two Soviets, Col. Sergei Edemski and Mikhail S. Shumakov, were named as coconspirators in the indictment returned by a grand jury in Newport News, Va. The Justice Department said the two were not charged because they are no longer in the United States.

Edemski, former assistant Soviet military attaché, returned home in February 1960 and Shumakov, former first secretary, returned in September 1963, the department said.

Whalen, who had been awarded the Legion of Merit and Army Commendation Medal, served in Europe and Japan before being assigned in 1953 to the Army intelligence branch of the foreign liaison office in Washington.

He later was assigned to the staff of the office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff at the Pentagon where he served until Feb. 3, 1961, when he was retired on a physical disability after more than 20 years of active duty.

Whalen's wife, Bernadine, was contacted by Washington Star reporter Walter Gold shortly after her husband's arrest. As he read her an Associated Press story detailing the charges, Gold said she broke into tears and said: "I don't know how this could happen. It isn't possible. I don't believe, I don't believe it, I'll never believe it. It just isn't true, it just isn't true — he never said anything about this to me."

"Oh, what will I do now — who's going to pay all these bills?"

She declined later to talk with other newsmen. The Army said Whalen is a native of Watervliet, N.Y. He reportedly had worked the last three summers as a laborer for the Fairfax County Park Authority in Virginia at wages ranging from $1.40 to $1.79 an hour.

They'll Try Again in Air Line Strike

By VERN HAUGLAND
WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiators meet again today in an effort to resolve the six-day airlines strike after a dispute over a "status quo" agreement abruptly broke up talks Tuesday.

The AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists halted the talks and accused Northwest Airlines, one of five companies shut down by the walkout, of putting economic pressure on its employees living in the airline's compound in Tokyo.

Northwest denied knowledge of any violations of the Aug. 9, 1965, union-management agreement "to keep things the way they are" pending the outcome of contract talks.

Today's meeting, sources said, will attempt to determine whether there is any basis for the IAM complaint and whether the Tokyo developments were local in nature or connected with the Northwest headquarters in Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn.

A spokesman for Northwest said the airline took its action after mechanics refused to service military charter flights. The spokesman added that the demand for rent payments followed company policy that was in existence before the strike.

LBJ Spells Out 4-Point Peace Policy

By LEWIS GÜLICK
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has spelled out a four-point policy for peace in Asia combining U. S. commitment against aggression there with a continuing effort for improved relations with Red China.

"The peace we seek in Asia is a peace of conciliation," Johnson said in a speech Tuesday night to the American Alumni Council.

"Communists in Asia still believe in force to achieve their goals" and the United States, as a Pacific power, "will not retreat from the obligations of freedom and security in Asia" and particularly in Viet Nam, he said.

But lasting peace depends on international trade, the free flow of people and ideas, the full participation of all nations in an international community and a common dedication to human progress and development, he said.

Declaring that "a peaceful mainland China is central to a peaceful Asia," he said Peking must be discouraged from aggression hostility and encouraged toward peaceful cooperation with others.

He cited U. S. efforts — so far unsuccessful — to open up travel between the United States and mainland China.

Such U. S. initiatives will continue, he said "because we believe that cooperation, not hostility, is really the way of the future" toward a Pacific era in which America and Asia are partners across the ocean.

Hays Kisses First Baby in Campaign

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Brooks Hays, veteran of many congressional campaigns, made it to his third bid for the governorship before he kissed a baby.

Hays, after kissing 2-year-old Rebecca Albright of Fayetteville Tuesday, said it was the first time he had ever tried it as a candidate.

"I dislike the thought of kissing babies for votes and wouldn't dream of doing it," Hays said. "But I couldn't help myself this time. She had to be kissed."

On a more serious note, Hays told Fayetteville audiences that the most workable approach to modernizing the state's 1874 constitution may be through having citizen groups draft amendments to it.

He also said if he is elected governor he would see to it that Arkansas takes full advantage of the Ozark Economic development program.

"The state must take the initiative," Hays said, "in making plans for programs and projects which will be funded by the federal government on a generous matching basis."

On the state constitution, Hays said that although there was considerable support for constitutional revision, public opinion is still short of the groundswell needed to make it a success.

Dr. Dale Alford, another of the seven Democratic candidates for governor, was also in Fayetteville Tuesday.

Alford announced a change in strategy while stumping. From now on, he said, he is going to discuss only two or three points of his platform and briefly summarize the others. This, he said, may eliminate some of the confusion in the minds of voters.

Negro Youths Loot Stores in Chicago

By DAN MCNULTY

LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
CHICAGO (AP) — Bands of Negro youths ran through a near Southwest Side neighborhood Tuesday night, breaking windows, looting stores and hurling rocks and homemade bombs.

The disturbance was ignited during the late afternoon when police turned off a fire hydrant in the Negro neighborhood during hot, muggy weather.

It was the second major disturbance in Chicago this summer.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., chairman of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, and Negro community leaders helped police quell the disturbance.

Twenty-four Negroes were arrested and several persons were injured during the melee, including motorists whose car windows were shattered by rocks as they drove through the area.

The incident came on a night when an 88-degree temperature enveloped the city. During the day, the mercury was 96.

The disturbance at the fire hydrant began about 5:30 p.m. Several hundred Negroes were involved in the incident and police were reporting sporadic pockets of trouble in the early hours today.

The trouble occurred along a one-mile strip of Roosevelt Road and for a quarter mile to the south, about 26 blocks from downtown Chicago.

It is common practice on hot days in Chicago for residents to open fire hydrants for children to cool themselves. More than 300 hydrants were opened across the city Tuesday.

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — For the third time, temperatures over 100 degrees caused sections of Interstate 30 south-west of here to buckle up Tuesday.

Spots in the highway stood as high as three feet on Saturday, Sunday and Tuesday. The first two times it happened near Benton, the third time near the Bryant exit of the highway.

Highway Department crews have been removing the swollen sections and replacing them with new pavement.

Gemini 10 Crew Makes a Test Run

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Gemini 10 astronauts run through a second day of practice today for next Monday's double rendezvous and space-walk launching.

Navy Cmdr. John W. Young and Air Force Maj. Michael Collins planned to spend much of the day in their spacecraft atop a Titan 2 rocket, rehearsing major portions of the three-day mission.

The launch crews passed a major test Tuesday with a flawless countdown simulation with the two rockets involved.

An Atlas is to lift off at 4:41 p.m. EDT Monday to boost an Agena target satellite into orbit. A Titan 2 is to loft the astronauts skyward at 6:21 p.m. EDT.

Planes Smash Another Cong Oil Depot

By ROBERT TUCKMAN
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Carrier-based U.S. Navy bombers left an oil depot northwest of Halphong in smoke and flames Tuesday and for the first time in the Viet Nam war encountered old-model MIG15s.

Two MIG15s, the first of the type built by the Soviet Union, were sighted near Hanoi, but did not engage the American raiders. The MIG15s, slow by present standards, made their combat debut in the early 1950s during the Korean War. The previous Communist jets encountered in this war have been MIG17s or the newer-model MIG21s.

The U.S. command also announced that American Air Force planes eluded a surface-to-air missile over North Viet Nam today.

Two Army helicopters were shot down in South Viet Nam Tuesday bringing the number lost to enemy ground fire in the war to 181.

The helicopter losses do not include those destroyed on the ground in Viet Cong attacks on airfields or those downed by mechanical failure.

An Army helicopter was shot down by ground fire 15 miles northwest of Saigon, injuring four Americans, the spokesman said.

Some Upsets in Election in Virginia

By JOHN F. DAFRON
RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Democratic primary upsets of Virginia's senior pillars of conservatism in both houses of Congress sent tremors through the state's political structure today.

In three key races in the Tuesday election only Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr. managed to win over the moderate to liberal challengers seeking to restyle the state party image.

By the slimmest of margins—less than one-half of one percent of the vote—Sen. A. Willis Robertson, 79, lost a see-saw fight to State Sen. William B. Spong Jr., 45, a Portsmouth attorney.

The margin of defeat was essentially the same for Rep. Howard W. Smith, 83, dean of the Virginia congressional delegation and chairman of the House Rules Committee.

Winner of that race was George C. Rawlings Jr., state legislator from Fredericksburg.

And Byrd's victory margin was only one per cent in a relatively tight vote of less than 435,000. The rival camps had forecast a vote of a half million or better.

Byrd defeated former State Sen. Armistead L. Boothe of Alexandria.

Nashville Asking School Mill Hike

NASHVILLE, Ark. (AP) — The Nashville School Board has asked for a 10-mill property tax increase to finance construction of a high school building.

The board said another school building was needed because of the consolidation this fall with the all-Negro Childress district. The building program would cost $638,000. A 10-mill increase would place the millage at 50 in the district.

High Demand on Electricity

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Arkansas' heat wave has produced an all-time high demand for electricity in the state, Arkansas Power & Light Co. said Tuesday.

Little Rock customers had a record demand of 300,300 kilowatts at 4 p.m. Tuesday, compared to the previous high of 275,000 kilowatts last June 28.

AP&L said its customers throughout the state demanded a record 1,628,000 kilowatts Monday at 2 p.m. the former record demand was 1,569,000 kilowatts, all-time established June 28, the company said.
